OVERVIEW

Our stress management workshops introduce students to the key skills needed to manage their stress so that they can prepare for and produce their best work under the inevitable pressure of academic life. It arises whilst meeting deadlines and during the build up to exams, the exam season, interviews, presentations and in sport.

The philosophy behind our workshops is that once you have acquired the necessary knowledge and skills to succeed at something, you are often required to reproduce them under pressure or stress. The ability to do this can be taught; we do this using the LEAP model.
